

2014 Extension Payment Voucher for Colorado Individual Income Tax (calendar year—Due April 15, 2015)

Automatic Filing Extension General Information

Colorado offers an automatic 6-month extension to file your income tax return if you cannot submit your return by the April 15 due date. This means that you can file your return by October 15 without filing this form. However, 90% of your tax MUST BE PAID by April 15. If you must wait until October 15 to file your return, use the following worksheet to calculate whether you need to remit a payment on April 15.

Persons Traveling or Residing Abroad

If you are traveling or residing outside the United States on April 15, the deadline for filing your return is June 16, 2015. If you need additional time to file your return, you will automatically have until October 15, 2015 to file. Interest is due on any payment received after April 15, 2015. To avoid any late payment penalties you must pay 90% of your tax liability by June 15, 2015. When filing your return, mark the appropriate box on Revenue Online or paper return.

Penalties and Interest

If a return is filed on extension and at least 90% of the tax is not paid by the April 15 due date, a late payment penalty and interest accruals will be assessed by the department. However, if all the terms of filing on extension are met, and the remaining tax is paid by October 15 the additional tax payment is subject to only interest accruals.

Pay Electronically

Taxpayers may pay online at www.Colorado.gov/RevenueOnline. Online payments reduce errors and provide instant payment confirmation. Revenue Online also allows users to submit various forms and to monitor their tax account.

EFT Debit and EFT Credit options are free services offered by the Department. EFT services require pre-registration before payments can be made.

Visit www.Colorado.gov/revenue/eft for more information.

The DR 0158-I is not required if an online payment is made. Please be advised that a nominal processing fee may apply to electronic payments.
